It's a cold, wet day when the grand jury in St. Paul don't indict a banker or two.

It now looks as if Murderer Durant, at San Francisco, would get his just deserts June 11th.

And now $13,000 has mysteriously disappeared from a St. Paul bank and no trace of it can be found.

It is stated that the Great Northern road will extend its line from Grand Rapids to Leech Lake this season.

The register of deeds of St. Louis county on Monday was found guilty of appropriating to his own use public money.

A DECREASE of a million and a half dollars in the public debt of the country during the month of May is reported.

The new silver paper published at Staples, the Tribune, resents the insinuation that it leans toward populism and says: "We would inform the Cass county Pioneer that this is no populist paper."

Bede's Budget has been removed to Pine City. Jadun got away from St. Paul without being indicted, and that's what many a prominent citizen of the city at the head of navigation is wishing that he had done.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that everybody has been doing nothing but shiver the past month, the weather bureau calmly announces that the temperature was normal. We must get a new weather clerk and no mistake.

A REQUISITION for $26,182.92 has been made upon the treasury department for the payment of interest to the Mille Lacs branch of the Chippewa Indians which has been due for some time. The pay roll contains 710 names.

MORE progress was made in the senate in three days while considering the Dingley tariff bill than was made in that many weeks on the Wilson bill. It is probable that the bill will become a law by July 1st. Let us hope so.

THE executive committee of the Minnesota State League of Republican clubs will meet in St. Paul on June 10 for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the annual convention of the national league, which will be held at Detroit July 13, 14, and 15th.

PRESIDENT McKinley has been petitioned by twenty-two thousand and odd citizens of San Francisco to make his uncle, Benj. McKinley, postmaster of their city. With a pull of that kind and his nephew to decide the matter Benjamin will probably win.

THE weather bureau and the "oldest inhabitant" are at variance in regard to whether May was a cold month or not. Those people who removed their stoves some weeks ago and have been shivering around the kitchen fire ever since are probably better qualified to give evidence than either.

THE city of Moorhead is indignant because several of the country exchanges have commented on the fact that while the city applied to the state and received $5000 to aid flood sufferers in April they are about to burn up $4000 worth of fire works, etc., in a grand celebration on July 4th.

A GOVERNMENT official at Washington estimates that it would cost $100,000,000 for the United States to get ready for war with Spain. Jerry Rof, of Ft. Ripley, has been figuring on the matter for some time, and claims that the Washington estimate is high, says the Little Falls Transcript. Jerry is a valiant warrior and ought to know.

THEY have a funny way of doing things up in Roseau county according to reports. Last week the district court was in session and having attended to all the business appearing before it, Judge Ives ordered the grand jury to report, and that body not complying with the order the judge adjourned the term sine die leaving the grand jury still in session.

IT is charged by certain parties that gross carelessness and incompetency are among the shortcomings of Maj. Baldwin and Agent Allen at the White Earth reservation, and these charges have recently been filed at the interior department in Washington. The Duluth Herald says:

Maj. M. R. Baldwin, chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission, is now attending closely to the duties of his position, but is daily expecting to receive notice of his removal. It is not likely that he will have any successor as the department has about decided to abolish the commission and to adopt the plan in vogue at La Pointe Indian Agency for the disposition of timber on the White Earth and contiguous reservations.

THE Todd County Leader contains the following item in regard to its crematory which shows a peculiar attitude taken against an industry by the merchants and farmers:

The crematory at this place is a thing of the past, for the present at least. It closed last Saturday and on Monday O. H. Christensen left for Wisconsin to join his partner, Johnson, who went back two or three weeks ago. They have been bucking the farmers and merchants for three years and got tired of it. When they quit the merchants were paying a shilling for eight and ten cents worth, and this is about the way it has been right along. The farmers were getting 11 cents in cash for their cream when the crematory closed, but a good many of them could see more in the shilling in trade price.

He's a Good One.

Wm. Thielman, of St. Cloud, who has shot in all the tournaments given in this city, has gained such a reputation that it is necessary for him to disguise himself in order to get into the country shoots now. Here is what the Sioux Falls Press says about his ventures at the South Dakota tournament:

Among those who attended was a roughly dressed man who gave his name as "Tupper" and was immediately dubbed "the farmer." No one expected that he could shoot, but he astonished them all by winning more than half of the cash prizes hung up. He also won the special prize of a $50 hammerless gun. In that contest he tied Champion Jones, champion of South Dakota, and in the shoot of the "farmer" won.

Two mornings before my arrival a seamy, ill of confluent smallpox, was stabbed to death in an isolated tent, and it is to be devoutly hoped that the public prophesy of the political officer of the visitation on the murderer or murderers may be fulfilled. Only a short time since his sails went down to the polo ground in the upper valley with a pony. On the way he was killed by a Dirghar Swati, who evidently wanted to get hold of the animal, but after mounting it took the wrong road and galloped into a party of Sikhs returning from drill. One of them promptly hit the pony over the nose and the animal fell into their arms. By 10 o'clock the same morning he had paid the penalty of his crime. This sort of outrage is common enough, and Swati opinion, such as it is, does not condemn the murder of a Kafir, white or black, Sikh or English, but to kill a sahib is too dangerous to the tribal pocket and the tribal existence to be lightly attempted.

Before long the district will settle down to a more peaceful state. From an archaeological and religious standpoint, this part of the country is full of a peculiar interest, for these Swat valleys were the very seat and center of early Buddhism. No mound is ever disturbed without great quantities of Buddhist relics and objects of worship being discovered. First of all, there are the statues of Asoka himself, the groups collected around him after the manner of the medieval pictures of the adoration, and, lastly, friezes of a classical kind. The taste and style are somewhat varied, the later ones betraying the usual evidence of Hindoo influence in the grotesqueness of their art. Most of the earlier kind are full of Greek types, and were undoubtedly the result of the conquest of Alexander the Great. At Chukkurra, ten miles beyond the Malakund, there is a bridge over the Swat river at a place where tradition says a certain portion of Alexander's army crossed, coming into India the same way our force went up to Chitral. In the museums some of these Buddhist memorials have been placed together, and in that way show how high was the artistic power of the artists of early days. Such is the fanaticism of the Swati population even now that they hardly ever bring in a Buddha without first initiating him by chopping off the classic nose.

Very properly the finds thus spoiled earn no rewards. It is just this fanaticism that requires a regular check. The brigade at Malakund and at the various posts and forts is kept at full strength and not without need. Even so, it strikes the most casual critic that it is too near the base and too concentrated to keep the Chitral road as open as it ought to be. A half way house will soon have to be found and furnished.

THE "English Golfer." It can hardly be wondered that the term "English golfer" became one of reproach upon the northern courses. The pilgrims from the south were, in fact, a terrible nuisance. They had no respect for the sacred traditions of the game; they appeared on the classic heath of St. Andrews adorned in flogging "blazers," which filled the mind of the orthodox Scot with loathing; they never played a match, but toiled round the links with pencil and card, intent on deceiving themselves into the belief that they were daily lowering their record. A famous old caddy at North Berwick expressed the general feeling of his outspoken class when he pointed to one of these misguided individuals, busily engaged with his card on one of the putting greens, utterly oblivious to the fact that he was delaying the field, while he worked in the higher branches of arithmetic and remarked, in a loud tone of contempt to one of his party: "D'ye see you man? D'ye ken the best club in his set—it's his pencil."—H. J. Whigham in Scribner's.

Domesticating the Wasp. At a recent meeting of the British association Sir John Lubbock is reported to have exhibited a wasp which he had tamed during the summer holidays. The specimen, a little creature seemed attached to its owner, never stinging the hand that fed it with sugar, but allowing itself to be petted and gently stroked. Trips into the outer air are allowed to the domesticated wasp, but it always returns to the bottle in which it resides. Truly this was a curious pet.

Arms and Legs. According to the result of many measurements made at the Anthropological laboratory in London, the right arm in human beings is in the majority of cases longer than the left arm, while, on the contrary, the left leg is longer than the right leg. Sometimes, however, the relative proportions are exactly reversed, but very seldom does perfect equality exist between the two sides. The tendency of the right arm to exceed the left arm in length is somewhat greater in men than in women, while equality of strength in the two arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men.

Science knew nothing of the roc until certain Malagasy natives came to Mauritius to buy rum, bringing with them huge egg shells to serve as receptacles. Marco Polo saw some huge "quills" represented to have been plucked from the roc. They were 20 to 30 feet long.

THE SWAT VALLEY.

A Glance at its Cruel Type of Native Inhabitants.

It cannot be said that the Swat variety of Pathan is a very attractive person, writes H. W. Lawson, in the London Telegraph. Among Pathans the Swat is less favored, and the race here fanatically Mohammedan. It would be unfair to judge of what standard of civilization they may be capable just now, for our system of order has not yet taken root, and murder and theft are still things of everyday life.

Two mornings before my arrival a seamy, ill of confluent smallpox, was stabbed to death in an isolated tent, and it is to be devoutly hoped that the public prophesy of the political officer of the visitation on the murderer or murderers may be fulfilled. CHAIRLESS JAPAN.

An American Woman's Experience With Furniture Made to Order.

"One of the funniest experiences I had in Japan," said a woman recently, who has been connected with missionary work in that country, "was with chairs. It had never entered my mind that what is with us such a common article of household furniture should be an unknown quantity to any of the subjects of the mikado, and it was with dismay that I discovered the house I was to occupy was quite chairless. I immediately summoned a native carpenter and tried to explain to him what I wished him to make for me. It was an extremely difficult task, for he was evidently unable to comprehend why any one should desire to sit otherwise than cross legged upon the floor. Unfortunately, my talent for drawing is strictly limited. I realized that, but until I had made several ineffectual attempts to portray a chair—about as easy a subject as I could have had—I had never really appreciated the extent of my incapacity. The drawings which the poor carpenter finally carried off with him as models were such that my heart misgave me.

"That I had good reason for my fears was shown when the chairs were sent home. With the proverbial oriental faithfulness, the man had made precise copies of his patterns. Where the chairs of my sketches had weakly balanced backs, slanting seats and crooked legs, their wooden counterparts exhibited the same peculiarities. They were more difficult to sit on than I should ever have imagined chairs could possibly be. Some of them needed the moral support of a friendly wall to enable them to make any sort of use of standing on their legs.

"It was a little after this that I gave a small reception to a few of the people whose acquaintance I had made. One of the first to arrive was a city official of high rank. Anxious apparently, to do the correct thing in my eyes, he seated himself on one of the chairs, very gingerly. It must be confessed, for he confined himself to the extreme front edge, and looked as if he expected some accident to happen at any moment. When I handed him the tea and cake which comprised the refreshments, he took the cup in one hand and the plate in the other. Then he sat there, with his hands full, not knowing what to do in order to be free to eat, and looking thoroughly miserable. After a minute or two of this suspense, which I must say I was enjoying, he begged me in a most deprecating manner for permission to sit in the fashion of his country. Of course I hastened to grant it, and I shall not soon forget the look of relief with which he slid gently and gracefully to the floor. There he disposed his cup on one side of him and his plate of cake on the other and proceeded to eat and drink in comfort. The latter callers took their cue from him and fought shy of the foreign innovations also. Considering how the chairs looked, I don't know that they would have treated even the finest specimens of American workmanship with the same distrust."—New York Tribune.

"The creamery at this place is a thing of the past, for the present at least. It closed last Saturday and on Monday O. H. Christensen left for Wisconsin to join his partner, Johnson, who went back two or three weeks ago. They have been bucking the farmers and merchants for three years and got tired of it. When they quit the merchants were paying a shilling for eight and ten cents butter, and for about the way it has been right along. The farmers were getting 11 cents in cash for their cream when the creamery closed, but a good many of them could see more in the shilling in trade price.

TOO MUCH . . .

... HOT STAKE

It was a cold, wet day when the grand jury in St. Paul don't indict a banker or two.

It now looks as if Murderer Durant, at San Francisco, would get his just deserts June 11th.

And now $13,600 has mysteriously disappeared from a St. Paul bank and no trace of it can be found.

It is stated that the Great Northern road will extend its line from Grand Rapids to Leech lake this season.

The register of deeds of St. Louis county on Monday was found guilty of appropriating to his own use public money.

A DECREASE of a million and a half dollars in the public debt of the country during the month of May is reported.

The new silver paper published at Staples, the Tribune, resents the insinuation that it leans toward populism and says: "We would inform the Cass county Pioneer that this is no populist paper."

Bede's Budget has been removed to Pine City. Jadam got away from St. Paul without being indicted, and that's what many a prominent citizen of the city at the head of navigation is wishing that he had done.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that everybody has been doing nothing but shiver the past month, the weather bureau calmly announces that the temperature was normal. We must get a new weather clerk and no mistake.

A REQUISITION for $26,182.92 has been made upon the treasury department for the payment of interest to the Mills Lake branch of the Chippewa Indians which has been due for some time. The pay roll contains 740 names.

MORE progress was made in the senate in three days while considering the Dingley tariff bill than was made in that many weeks on the Wilson bill. It is probable that the bill will become a law by July 1st. Let us hope so.

The executive committee of the Minnesota State League of Republican clubs will meet in St. Paul on June 10 for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the annual convention of the national league, which will be held at Detroit July 13, 14, and 15th.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has been petitioned by twenty thousand and odd citizens of San Francisco to make his uncle, Benj. McKinley, postmaster of their city. With a pull of that kind and his nephew to decide the matter Benjamin will probably win.

The weather bureau and the "oldest inhabitant" are at variance in regard to whether May was a cold month or not. Those people who removed their stoves some weeks ago and have been shivering around the kitchen fire ever since are probably better qualified to give evidence than either.

THE city of Moorhead is indignant because several of the country exchanges have commented on the fact that while the city applied to the state and received $5000 to aid flood sufferers in April they are about to burn up $4000 worth of fire works, etc., in a grand celebration on July 4th.

A GOVERNMENT official at Washington estimates that it would cost $400,000,000 for the United States to get ready for war with Spain. Jerry Root, of Ft. Ripley, has been figuring on the matter for some time, and claims that the Washington estimate is high, says the Little Falls Transcript. Jerry is a valiant warrior and ought to know.

THEY have a funny way of doing things up in Roseau county according to reports. Last week the district court was in session and having adjourned to all the business appearing before it, Judge Ives ordered the grand jury to report, and that body not complying with the order the judge adjourned the term sine die leaving the grand jury still in session.

It is charged by certain parties that gross carelessness and incompetence are among the shortcomings of Maj. Baldwin and Agent Allen at the White Earth reservation, and these charges have recently been filed at the interior department in Washington. The Duluth Herald says:

Maj. M. R. Baldwin, chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission, is now attending closely to the duties of his position, but is daily expelling to receive notice of his removal. It is not likely that he will have any successor as the department has about decided to abolish the commission and to employ the plan in vogue at La Pointe. The Interior Agency for the disposition of timber on the White Earth and contiguous reservations.

Shot at in Bed.

Jesse Williams who lives with his wife on a farm near Billings' mill in this county was in the city Tuesday to see the county attorney and receive treatment for a wound which he says he received a few days ago in a rather peculiar manner. Mr. Williams is of the opinion that an attempt was made on his life and says that about midnight on Thursday he and his wife were awakened by the report of a gun and on jumping out of bed another volley was fired, one of the bullets striking Mr. Williams on the head, having penetrated the side of the building. Other bullets were imbedded in the head board of the bed and numerous places were found where the outside of the house had been perforated. Mr. Williams says he is certain that it was the intention of the party to kill him and his wife as the shots were fired into the corner of the house where his bed stood and which was occupied by them. He says he has suspicions as to who did the shooting but did not want to tell who he suspected or why, merely stating he had had trouble with them. The wound in his head was not of a serious nature and looked more as though it had been received from a blow with a club than from a bullet and his story as to the affair did not seem to impress the authorities that any great crime had been attempted. Williams came to this country last fall from Missouri.

For Amateurs Only.

The Brainerd gun club will hold a meeting this evening to make the final arrangements for the sixth annual tournament which is to be held on the 24th and 25th of June during the Park Region G. A. R. encampment. The club will offer no inducements that will bring crack shots to take all the money and the shoot will be arranged especially to attract local shooters. The program will be issued shortly and a glance at it will show the members of our neighboring clubs that they can come to Brainerd on that date and enjoy a tournament in which all will stand an equal show. Besides this the event will be one of interest to the members of the G. A. R. who will be in the city at that time. A reduced rate of a fare and a third will be made by the railroads on that occasion and it is expected that the various attractions during encampment week will bring in a goodly number of local shooters from Wadena, Staples, Atkin, Little Falls, Duluth, Grand Rapids, and other points.

Caught a Horse Thief.

C. F. Parrish, a deputy sheriff of Hennepin county, arrived in the city on Monday and located a man by the name of Sam Morris at the Stratton House at which place he arrested him and placed him in the county jail. Morris was wanted for stealing a horse from a farmer named Gotlieb Cirsinski, of Long lake township in Hennepin county, the animal being taken in February from the barn of the owner together with a harness. Morris is a traveling stove repairer and he used the animal to convey him about the country with his outfit. When at Big Lake, however, he left the horse with a man to pasture for some reason and the officers by this means located him at this place as above stated. When arrested he said he had no intention of stealing the horse but intended returning it. The prisoner was taken to Minneapolis on Tuesday, the horse having been recovered and sent to its rightful owner some days ago.

Bad Men of Long Ago.

It was a bloodless war—that war of July, 1872, when the three militia companies of St. Paul stood in arms against the savage Chippewa who were raging in all his tribes like a ravenous beast says the Minneapolis Journal. In order to give authenticity to the lurid tales told by the survivors of the battle of the Bear they have decided to meet at the St. Paul Commercial Club on the evening of June 10 and organize an annex to the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R. The Blueberry war resulted from the murder of a school teacher near Brainerd by two drunken Indians who were promptly caught and lynched by the real bad men who lived in Brainerd in those days of the building of the Northern Pacific. Thereupon the sages and warriors of all the Chippewa nation bathed their faces in vermilion, sharpened their knives and hatchets and breathed war. No harm was done, but the price of blueberries went up 3 cents, with the Indians who blocked added the swamps where they grew. Hence the name.

Strayed.

Two cows strayed from my premises, 124 Fourth street north, Brainerd, on Wednesday, June 2nd. One is red, with very large horns, giving milk, about 5 years old. The other is part Pol Angus, four years old, and will soon give milk. A suitable reward will be paid for their return, or information of their whereabouts.

Didn't Care a Penny.

A. F. Ferris, of this city, and A. N. Dare, of the Elk River Star News, have been enjoying a trip on the western coast and Mr. Dare writes his paper the following in regard to the trip on the ocean from Portland to San Francisco:

"Most people think a sea voyage very monotonous, but I am not one of the number. I can sit for hours on the deck of a ship and watch the wide expanse of water as it passes by without getting tired. The sublimity of the ocean with nothing in sight in any direction but water, always appeals to my imagination, and I drank it all in on this trip with an avidity that perhaps everybody would not appreciate. There is a sort of free masonry among people who travel by water that makes all of kin, and it takes but little time to make acquaintances, many of them proving to be very agreeable, and it is with feelings of regret that one parts with them at the end of the trip. I am so much infatuated with this part of my trip that I am trying to persuade my traveling companion, Mr. Ferris, to return to Portland the same way, but as his experience on the trip was mostly confined to a stuffy bunk in which he did not care a penny whether he lived or died, the probability of my succeeding does not at present look very bright."

Strayed.

Two spring calves, both red. Left my premises, Saturday, May 29.

UNRELENTING.

I walked with my friend of an earlier time. Whose guidance I strive to keep. Who checks my spirit that lightly climb. In praise of some modern deed. He was no great man, he assures me oft. "Like those that we know of yore. The senate and stage have completely defied. The stories that once they wore."

"The pictures they paint," says my mentor grim. "Are patches, devoid of art. And the girls are no longer demure and trim. Like the girls who endeared my heart. And the tales we read and the songs we sing. Are reflections of other days. The halo which genius, extinct, may fling. O'er posterity's legends."

So I thought to beguile him with other themes. And I spoke of the light that shone. Where the west, adame with the sun's last beams. Proclaimed that the day had flown. Unsmiling, to watch the scene he stood. He had a slightly better way. "It's fair," said he, "but it's no good. As they gave us when I was a boy."—Washington Star.

She Spoke Latin.

Perhaps, after all, the comic papers have some foundation in fact for their continued slurs, under the guise of jokes, at Boston women on account of their "bluestocking" proclivities. I had never believed that examples were common where they made obtrusive use of their learning.

Recently in a Back Bay car there was an empty seat beside a young lady, evidently of that much discussed class, but who gave no outward appearance of it. To be sure, she had a slightly protruding forehead and wore gold bowed eyes-glasses, but there was no azure blue halo visible, nor was she in any degree prim. A young gentleman, evidently a stranger in town, was about to take the empty seat, when the car gave a sudden start, causing him to crowd the lady.

Touching his hat, he politely begged her pardon. "With a slight inclination of the head she replied: 'Fas omne est.'"

I have no doubt my face looked a little blank with astonishment, but the expression on that young man's countenance was a study. A sort of dazed look came into his eyes, as, drawing a long breath which was almost a gasp, he instinctively again touched his hat and murmured, "Thank you," but he was manifestly in terror during the balance of his ride.

That young man "won't do a thing," but tell stories of Boston women when he reaches home.—Boston Post.

English Naval Troubles.

Those unduly pessimistic souls who have been overimpressed by the series of accidents which have occurred in Uncle Sam's navy should read the Hampshire Telegraph, an English newspaper which makes a specialty of naval notes and news. On one page of a single recent issue the following startling and self explanatory headlines occur: "On a Dangerous Course. Grounding of the Galathea. Navigator's Serious Mistake." "Shocking Accident on H. M. S. Howe. Three Men Killed. Fully Injured." "Accident on Board H. M. S. Blake. Seaman Fatally Crushed. Two Artificers and a Stoker Scalded." Another headline has it in a certain amount of humor. It reads, "Shocking Occurrence on the Sans Pareil." The shocking occurrence was the death of a gunner who tried to put seven pints of rum under his skin, and succeeded, but did not live to enjoy the proceeding.—Philadelphia Press.

Shot at in Bed.

Jesse Williams who lives with his wife on a farm near Billings' mill, in this county was in the city Tuesday to see the county attorney and receive treatment for a wound which he says he received a few days ago in a rather peculiar manner. Mr. Williams is of the opinion that an attempt was made on his life and says that about midnight on Thursday he and his wife were awakened by the report of a gun and on jumping out of bed another volley was fired, one of the bullets striking Mr. Williams on the head, having penetrated the side of the building. Other bullets were imbedded in the head board of the bed and numerous places were found where the outside of the house had been perforated. Mr. Williams says he is certain that it was the intention of the party to kill him and his wife as the shots were fired into the corner of the house where his bed stood and which was occupied by them. He says he has suspicions as to who did the shooting but did not want to tell who he suspected or why, merely stating he had had trouble with them. The wound in his head was not of a serious nature and looked more as though it had been received from a blow with a club than from a bullet and his story as to the affair did not seem to impress the authorities that any great crime had been attempted. Williams came to this country last fall from Missouri.

The Brainerd gun club will hold a meeting this evening to make the final arrangements for the sixth annual tournament which is to be held on the 24th and 25th of June during the Park Region G. A. R. encampment. The club will offer no inducements that will bring crack shots to take all the money and the shoot will be arranged especially to attract local shooters. The program will be issued shortly and a glance at it will show the members of our neighboring clubs that they can come to Brainerd on that date and enjoy a tournament in which all will stand an equal show. Besides this the event will be one of interest to the members of the G. A. R. who will be in the city at that time. A reduced rate of a fare and a third will be made by the railroads on that occasion and it is expected that the various attractions during encampment week will bring in a goodly number of local shooters from Wadena, Staples, Atkin, Little Falls, Duluth, Grand Rapids, and other points.

Caught a Horse Thief.

C. F. Parrish, a deputy sheriff of Hennepin county, arrived in the city on Monday and located a man by the name of Sam. Morris at the Stratton House at which place he arrested him and placed him in the county jail. Morris was wanted for stealing a horse from a farmer named Gottlieb Cirsinski, of Long lake township in Hennepin county, the animal being taken in February from the barn of the owner together with a harness. Morris is a traveling stove repairer and he used the animal to convey him about the country with his outfit. When at Big Lake, however, he left the horse with a man to pasture for some reason and the officers by this means located him at this place as above stated. When arrested he said he had no intention of stealing the horse but intended returning it. The prisoner was taken to Minneapolis on Tuesday, the horse having been recovered and sent to its rightful owner some days ago.

Bad Men of Long Ago.

It was a bloodless war—that war of July, 1872, when the three militia companies of St. Paul stood in arms against the savage Chippewa who were raging in all his tribes like a ravenous beast says the Minneapolis Journal. In order to give authenticity to the lurid tales told by the survivors of the Blueberry war they have decided to meet at the St. Paul Commercial Club on the evening of June 10 and organize an annex to the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R. The Blueberry war resulted from the murder of a school teacher near Brainerd by two drunken Indians who were promptly caught and lynched by the real bad men who lived in Brainerd in those days of the building of the Northern Pacific. Thereupon the sages and warriors of all the Chippewa nation gathered their faces in "vermillion," sharpened their knives and hatchets and breathed war. No harm was done, but the price of blueberries went up 3 cents, with the Indians who blockaded the swamps where they grew hence the name.

Strayed.

Two cows strayed from my premises, 124 Fourth street north, Brainerd, on Wednesday, June 2d. One is red, with very large horns, giving milk about 5 years old. The other is part Pol Angus, four years old, and will soon give milk. A suitable reward will be paid for their return, or information of their whereabouts.

Wm. Barzon.

Didn't Care a Penny.

A. F. Ferris, of this city, and A. N. Dare, of the Elk River Star News, have been enjoying a trip on the western coast and Mr. Dare writes his paper the following in regard to the trip to the ocean from Portland to San Francisco:

"Most people think a sea voyage very monotonous, but I am not one of the number. I can sit for hours on the deck of a ship and watch the wide expanse of water as it passes by with out getting tired. The serenity of the ocean with nothing in sight in any direction but water, always appeals to my imagination, and I drank it all in on this trip with an avidity that perhaps everybody would not appreciate. There is a sort of free masonry among people who travel by water that makes all of kin, and it takes but little time to make acquaintances, many of them proving to be very agreeable, and it is with feelings of regret that one parts with them at the end of the trip. I am so much infatuated with this part of my trip that I am trying to persuade my traveling companion, Mr. Ferris, to return to Portland the same way, but he has the experience of the trip was mostly confined to a stuffy bunk in which he did not care a penny whether he lived or died, the probabilities of my succeeding do not at present look very bright."

Strayed.

Two spring calves, both red. Left my premises, Saturday, May 29.

Fancy should always be subordinated to reason.

Riches have wings, but they flap no wings to poor relations.

The charity that begins at home and ends at home is weak in the legs.

Fine clothes do not make the woman, but they sometimes break the husband.

The man who spends all his evenings at home never has to spend any of his time in jail.

The church member who writes "holiness unto the Lord" on his pocketbook will have plenty of money for missions.

A man may be more careful about the foundation that is under his house, than about the foundation that is under his life.

Widespread distress is reported among thousands of idle men and women in south Spain. A large gathering, with their wives and children, at Lucena recently demanded bread. None was forthcoming, and the starving went away as hungry as they came.

Florida alligators are a large target, and so many are continually slaughtered that their speedy extermination is considered probable. Florida turtles, also, are in danger of extinction, through the stealing of their eggs. All naturalists object to a wanton destruction of any animal species.

The United States fisheries commission has called attention to the state of affairs in Florida.

Eveline Lee, an aged Negress, who died recently at Macon, Ga., was buried with all the ceremony the village could provide, and many wealthy country folk attended the services. She was 90 years old, having lived a life devoted forty years of her life to serving the Nolan family. When the emancipation proclamation was issued she declined to leave her mistress. Aunt Eveline was the last rare bird among negroes, an old maid.

The Russian government is said to be considering the extension of the Transcaucasian railway south through Georgia to a port on the Indian ocean.

This is said to involve no engineering difficulties. The opening of such a line, it has been urged, would not fail to be of the utmost possible advantage to Russia, both in extending her commercial relations with Persia and neighboring states, but also opening a new and rapid strategic route to the Indian ocean.

The only difficulty at present in the way of the project is the possibility of opposition by the Persian government to the construction of the proposed line.

The last British consular report from Havre and the towns in that district show that on the whole the importation of British coal has not been interrupted.

The American consul at Chemnitz reports that, in spite of freight reductions all over Germany, and his own efforts to encourage the resumption of German coal, the trade in British coal is still very large. In 1895 it amounted to 4,000,000 tons, and it increased last year.

Even in Berlin, while the consumption increased 10 per cent, the increase in German coal consumed there was on 12 per cent, the rest being British. England's coal, the American consul adds, is cheaper and better than that of continental countries.

The press disposition of the Stockholm Exposition continues to send out alluring notices of the various attractions offered there this summer.

The latest news concerns the army and navy exhibits and the international regatta. The entrance of the naval exhibit represents the stern of a ship of the line of the seventeenth century, with turrets, cannon lanterns and flagstaffs, while the entrance to the army exhibit reproduces a sumptuous tent of the same period. In the bay a series of models are anchored, showing many types from the most ancient patterns to the modern ironclad, these are surrounded by a floating bridge, from which landing bridges lead up to the different vessels. The regatta, arranged by the Swedish Yacht club at an expense of $30,000 in honor of the King's jubilee in July, bids fair to be a remarkable success.

Emperor William of Germany will visit this autumn yacht, Meteor, and the German navy's yacht Konig, and the German tonnage. Many other German and English yachts are also expected, which, together with the Norwegian, Danish, Finnish and Russian boats, will form a fleet of 150 yachts, give promise of some very interesting races.

A statistician compiled the following figures, showing the price of nourishment for the various nations. The average Englishman consumes $25 worth of food per year; Germans $20; Austrians, $22; Frenchmen $12; Italians $10, and the Russian only $6 worth of eatables per year.

In the consumption of meat the English speaking nations are also in the lead, with 128 pounds of meat a year per capita of the population, the Frenchman using 45, the Austrian 73, Germans 72, Italians 52, Russian 50.

A father generally thinks that his children will be a comfort to him in his old age. How very comfortable could a proud father in Breckinridge, Ky., to his twenty-seven. Indeed, his life ought to be one of continual sunshine.

Rev. Sabin Halsey, D. D., a very prominent Methodist preacher in Wisconsin, has resigned from the conference to enter the grocery business in Milwaukee. He proposes to save people money by giving them wholesome food.

A Scotch professor who has been experimenting with the Roentgen rays says that they reddens the skin slightly when they enter and leave the body, but that no harm results. It seems to be ascertained, however, that a long exposure of the head will cause some of the hair to fall out temporarily. X-ray examinations upstairs? X-ray far gone in nearly every large city.

Reinforcement seems to have been given by nature for a comfort to the soldier of fortune, and the security of innocence.
